created easy-to-understand posters and distributed them to residents in order to raise awareness about fake news, cyber fraud, misinformation, and disinformation. The posters displaying positive behaviour were displayed on social media to educate cyber volunteers on how to file a complaint. They were instructed to make phone calls and obtain thorough information regarding the filed complaint. They were also briefed on the inquiry process. Internet interns did a survey in order to improve Chandigarh police investigation and make the cyber world a safer place for its users. Keeping the internship's objective and goal in mind, the Chandigarh police, in cooperation with Infosys, conducted online sessions to train interns in technical matters or complaints. Because women have been the victims of the majority of cyber-attacks in the digital world, a social march was planned on the occasion of Women's Day, with cyber interns leading the way. The nukkad natak, which was done by ten college interns on the same day, demonstrated the varieties of eye-opening crimes that occur in various public settings.

On the occasion, Punjab Governor Banwarlilal Purohit accompanied the Union Minister. He praised the Chandigarh administration for implementing significant systemic improvements.
