10. Innovative Ways of Moving from Waste to Greens - (Planter making using waste materials) organized by Swachhta Committee of Department of Computer Science & Applications under the aegis of Institution's Innovative Council 5.0

Coordinators: Ms. Deepti Sharda, Ms. Navdeep Kaur

Date of activity: 17 November 2022

Objectives: The primary purpose of conducting this exercise was to provide students with an opportunity to learn about many innovative approaches that can be used to manage the waste in such a manner that it can be brought into use again. We need to be considerate towards our mother earth. One way to help reduce plastic waste, metal waste etc. is by making planters made from waste materials. Innovative techniques can be adopted for creating a range of pots for plants that is environmentally friendly and supports our favourite 3 R's: Reduce, Recycle, Reuse.

The Context: This activity was given to the students so that students realize that the way we are using our current resources are not sustainable and is putting pressure on our planet. We need to facilitate the transition of moving beyond waste policies and focussing on eco-design innovatively. This exercise provided a forum for students to think innovatively and develop planters using waste materials. Students were encouraged only to use real plant and not artificial plant.

The Practice: Students from different classes enthusiastically participated in this team event. The students were asked to submit the planter in the staff room of Department of Computer Science and Applications on 17th November 2022 between 10 am to 11 am. The Exhibition of collected planters was organized near Administration block from 11 am onwards.

Evidence of Success: A total of 10 students took part in the competition and enthusiastically submitted the planters made from plastic bottles, metal cans, vim bar container, water pipe, left over wood plank, left over wool and coconut shells. This activity elicited active participation from the students, who found it to be both engaging and enlightening. Overall, the event was successful. It was well-received by all who witnessed the exhibition.
